REVOLUTIONARY IDEAS

Willie & Max don't think you should be limited in your choices of saddlebags. That's why the new Revolution series comes in three styles—grommeted, swooped, and studded—and two different mounting methods—throwover and bolt-on.

The hard-mount system is incorporated into the bags so you don't have to buy and install separate hardware. The throwovers have reinforced backs and reinforced yokes, and fit over or under the seat.

LIGHT UP FOR LIFE

Trouble on the road takes on a new dimension in the dark. To help make sure a bad situation doesn't get worse, take along this Safety Strobe Light from Stop & Go. The battery-powered light can be seen for 3 miles in clear weather at night, and the pulsing Xenon light lets other motorists know you're there. One alkaline D battery powers the light for 72 hours. The Xenon bulb flashes once a second for 15 hours, then slows to a standby rate that can last for more than 60 hours.

SOUND AND FURY

A big bike demands a big sound—and not just from the exhaust system. The Woof-Pak subwoofer system fits into H-D's Tour-Pak and isn't just a generic bass tube, but a complete form-fitted liner/enclosure packed with an 8-inch Polk Audio marine-rated subwoofer, a 500-watt Sony Xplod monoblock amp, and simple plug-and-play wiring. It can be added to any sound system for serious depth and punch.
